A Word to Republicans

The hope of the party lies in the expansion of a stalwart Republican press. The Repubtican who reads or otherwise helps to support a Democratic paper to the exclusion of one of his own party newspapers is untrue to the Republican cause.

Unanimously subscribed to by the Nationa Republican League.

CHAIRMAN MANLEY of the Republican State Committee of Maine estimates that the Republican candidate for Governor is elected by a majority over the Democratic candidate of 12,000, and that the vote on Congressmen gives the Republicans a plurality of 14,000.

FREE-TRADE Democratic orators are fond of the phrase, "A Nation of millionaires and tramps," which they declare ests are in a deplorable condition." It his best regards to "Mollic," the friend's will result from Protection. What they wish to see is a Nation of tramps, with a few plantation barons to do the governing, such as existed in the South most markedly in the good old days of Free-trade.

THE Democratic platform is most certainly recognized as an official declaration of Democratic doctrine on the Tariff question. And no less certainly is be a learned exponent of that same doctrine on that question. And yet this is tion and that learned exponent agree: Democratic Platform | Mr. Atkinson in May

We denounce the McKinley Tariff law Forum. There never has rocity of class legislation, and we promise its repeal as one of the benificent results that will follow the action of the people in intrusting power to the Democratic party.

THE people of Maysville stand ready and willing to do their whole duty at all times and under all circumstances. But they felt greatly outraged, upon reading in The Cincinnati Enquirer, that the Health Officer of Cincinnati proposed to make an "outpost" of this city, and to station officers here for the purpose of stopping trains and taking off cholera-stricken people. Neither the Health Officer of Cincinnati nor the Governor of Ohio possesses the power to establish quarantine regulations in Kentucky. THE LEDGER dealers who had "ancient masters," the is for "states rights" that far, because color of gingerbread, and painted by the states are equal; but it places the authority of the President, whether he be Republican or Democrat, above all, because he represents all the people of all the states.

It was with no small degree of pleasure, therefore, that the truth of the matter was welcomed, when it became known that such was not the intention of the Cincinnati authorities. They simply asked the co-operation of the Maysville officials in an honest and he was spoken of by them as a rastaearnest effort to keep the plague away quonere. There is free competition, the freest possible competition in our markets, for capital, "But we should insist" says Mr. GUNTON, "that such competion shall be between capitalists only. Their success must be made to depend upon their ability as capitalists, and not upon their capacity to obtain cheap labor. * * * No capitalist shall have the benefit of our consumption and civilization without

PARISIAN SLANG.

Term Rastaquouers and Its Peculiar Significance.

A Word That Expresses a Combination of Riches, Vanity and Vulgarity-Peo-ple Who Love to Parade Their Extravagant Fancies.

The word rastaquouere, in its present extended sense, is a new one, and has no place in any dictionary, says a writer in London Truth. The academy bas as yet not noticed it. The word originated in this way: Early in the '70's a Senor Rastaquoueros, who came from some part of South America and had a fabulously large credit at Rothschild's, burst upon the town. He were predigiously large brilliants as shirt studs, rings to match, and used to give five-franc pieces as pourboires to waiters at cafes. He became a source of wealth to picture young Parisdan rapins to get rid of (sie). He had a box at the opera, where he used to show off his diamonds, and being predigal both from vanity and good nature, was, of course, a favorite of the corps de ballet. How he ended I have no idea. But his fortune was soon devoured by sharpers and his fair friends, After he disappeared these ladies used to go to Notre Dame des-Victoires to pray that a rastaquouere might be sent to them. When a wealthy Spanish-American turned up icans and Mexicans. It is now extended to most foreigners who are vain and rich, and believe that money can buy anything, everything, worth having in life-prize guests, of course, included. quorere. Three or four years ago the term could not have been applied to any English or even North American person. But they are all now, when rich, vain and vulgar, lumped up in the genus rastaquouere without being a snob. The former, I should say, is the snob triumphant, through the things that money can procure. This form of snobof it. The rustaquouere does not see what is the good of having Queen Isabella or the prince of Wales to guy matlinecs or inserious dinners unless the papers know that they came, what was paid for the fioral decorations, what viands and wines were set before them. and what comedicas were engaged at great prices to entertain them. It is not seelety, but an admiring public that the rasingeomere host and hostess

A resident of Titusville, Pa., committed spicide a few days ago from a melancholy conviction that he was his own grandfather. Here is the singular letter that be left: "I married a widow who had a grown-up daughter. My father visited our house very often, fell in love with my stepdaughter and married her. So my father became my son-Some time afterway had a son; he was my father's brotherin-law and my uncle, for he was the brother of my stepmother. The sending of a telegram is, appareasionally an evil spirit gets into the wires, and perverts the original message into a shape which causes wrath to the sender and much mirth to the lookeron, says the San Francisco News Letan engineering and construction party, at work near Hartford, telegraphed to a friend of his in that town to send him a couple of lamp shades, and, being on intimate terms with the family, added "my best regards" is indicated by the words "seventy-three," The message when sent read: "Send me two lamp but "seventy-three tomales" was there plain enough, and the thing was to the floor, and handed the astonished operator a note: "Dear X: What the do you want with seventy-three ing them all day. Will send the rest to-morrow. Bill is seven dollars." The air was blue about the car for awhile, but the trainmen had a tomale supper. Now the operator has his messages repeated if he thinks there's the slightest chance of their being misconstrued.

The Bore best.

A "bore bell" is the latest necessity of busy men and women. It is an invisible bell, arranged on the floor near the victim of a too talkative caller. When the guest has talked enough the Dr. MORRIS H. PHISTER, host or hostess quietly pairs a foot on the secret spot in the floor and the servant appears at the door with a totogram or important message which must be attended to at once. The caller naturally bows himself out and the victim is saved.
